

Creative Leadership Program

Transformative Philosophies and Skills
Based on Ancient Wisdom and the Healing Traditions

January – June, 2010

The Creative Leadership Program (CLP) is designed for established and emerging leaders seeking an empowering and innovative path to enhance their skills in order to create constructive change in the workplace, individually, and in the larger community. Students come from a variety of professional backgrounds and find this program highly relevant to their own unique settings.

This program consists of the first six months of the Master of Arts in Applied Healing Arts (AHA) degree program. Participants who are accepted for this executive format educational experience are simultaneously accepted into the AHA master's degree program and have the option to continue their studies after the initial six months.

Program Objectives

- Recover a new clarity, vision, and commitment to professional and personal goals
- Enhance skills for constructive change, personally and within organizations
- Learn leadership and life principles grounded in ancient wisdom and healing traditions
- Attain leadership skills to create a less stressful, more productive and positive environment

Program Outcomes

Upon completing the Creative Leadership Program, you will:

- Challenge assumptions and certitudes about yourself, your organization, and the wider world
- Gain clarity about your own unique talents and skills and how they can best serve yourself and others
- Understand the power of language and listening
- Acquire skills to hone communication and to effectively resolve conflicts
- Have the skills and capacity to create an optimum healing environment in the workplace and your personal community
- Gain leadership skills to enhance collaboration and partnership in a team or organization
